Dear Jesse:

It was a real pleasure getting to visit with you again in Chicago this past week-end. Thank you so much for bringing sister Hammond over to our services. I thoroughly enjoyed getting to visit with her. It made me appreciate even more the patient, loving way you and the brethren there have treated her. I talked with her on the phone before I left Chicago and she seemed thrilled at all you were doing for her and the way she was being received by the entire congregation.

Unfortunately, I still cannot recall the name of the man who is really working with this business of a praying church. I do not think it was anyone in Houston. The Houston situation that I mentioned was regarding Charlie Shedd and the Memorial Presbyterian church there, whose experiences are recounted in the paperback book, How To Develop a Praying Church, by Abingdon Press.

In answer to your question about someone to share a panel on "How to Enjoy the Christian Life," I would suggest Archie Crenshaw. Archie preaches for the Decatur, Georgia church and is doing a great job. I think he would elicit tremendous participation and would, above all, communicate to the audience his own real joy in being a Christian.

Let me know if there is anything else I can do. If I remember the preacher about whom I spoke, I will let you know immediately.

Fraternally yours,

John Allen Chalk
